

The Academy Movie Night

November 11, Friday starting at 6:00 pm (Movie starts at 7:00)

Finger food, drinks, or just yourself

Bring a friend

No door prizes, just great company

The Five Fingers of Death

You probably thought it was a Bruce Lee or Jackie Chan movie but, no, this is the film that started the “Asian Migration.”

Five Fingers of Death is a Kung Fu film that could just as easily been a western. It has all the elements: the love interest, the solitary man against his opponents, the out-of-town hired assassins.

It also suffers from some very lame love scenes, a touch of racism (in portrayal of the Japanese), hyperactive fight scenes, weird dialog and an incredible technique against a samurai sword at the end.

Plus: Sifu’s commentary IF he promises not to call it “Five Finger Foods of Death.”

